The diagram shows the ratio of detector efficiency ($\epsilon/\epsilon(0)$) as a function of the LHCb clock shift (ns). The data is represented by blue circles and red triangles, with two separate curves corresponding to different beam conditions: beam 1 and beam 2. The efficiency is plotted on the y-axis against the clock shift on the x-axis. The graph includes shaded regions indicating the variation of the data points.